

NYC homeless woman turns to performance art

“Why not do a Renaissance or vaudevillian show?”

“I am so blown away by her energy and by her commitment,” Jenn Lederer, a “motivational” comedian, told PIX11.

“Her ability to bring light to this project — it’s been fabulous to work with her so far,” she added.

And for Rebecca herself, she is hoping her story of now actually being paid to perform in comedy clubs will inspire others to not give up.

“Things do come to people who wait, who are faithful and diligent,” Scott told PIX11.

“A lot of my songs are inspirational as well.

The #Shift Your Self Motivational Comedy Act, a transformative comedic experience, will be a recurring show in New York City comedy clubs in the months to come.